MONDAY EVENING, SEPT'R. 80, 1878

It was the voice of the flower of the family from the stop stairs "Oh, mamma, please do come up." What is wanted, my daughter?" queried the tender parent. "Dear, dear me!" was the pathetic reply: "I can't decide which dress to wear, and I am so afraid I shall be late to church." And this may have accounted for her coming so late.—Chicago, Journal ed for her coming so late. - Chicago Journal.

"There would be more saloons in this town," said a native, as the train slowed north through Montgomery, "if it wasn't for one thing."—
"And what is that?" asked the tourist.— "Aint any more houses," replied the native; and the tourist opened his note book and remained absorbed in thought .- Burlington Hawkeye.

The business of nailing lies has commenced. A good sized orator will nail about a hundred a day, and he will make during the same period about five hundred for somebody else to nail. The weakness in this business is that it creates no demand for pails .- Chicago News.
